Married Women With Jobs Criminal - Baker

Would Teach Historical Origin of Separate Schools

Hydro contracts, separate schools, unemployment, and beverage rooms were among the subjects discussed by Morgan Baker, M.L.A. for North York, in the legislature in taking part in the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne.

"Some of the members have had a good deal to say about the 'ridings,' said Mr. Baker. 'North York has been represented by some of the leading lights in the national life of Canada. A little more than 100 years ago William Lyon Mackenzie, the father of responsible government in Upper Canada, was fighting the battles of the people. He did not live to realize all for which he contended, but every reform for which he stood then, will be found written on the statute books of Canada today. Other great men who have represented North York have been Sir William Mulock, Hon. E. J. Davis,

GOOD CROWD ENJOYS BAND'S GUEST ARTISTS

A full house seemed to appreciate the Tip Top Tailors' amateur show under the auspices of the Citizens' Band in the town hall on Thursday evening.

The band was in attendance under the baton of William C. Greig, acting bandmaster. The band gave several much appreciated numbers at the beginning and end of the program. The program included singing, tap-dancing and comedy.

Sir Allan Aylesworth and the present prime minister of Canada. How weak anything I may say must seem in comparison. I can only claim a sincerity of purpose and a desire to serve faithfully those who have honored me with their confidence.

"As I said in the beginning, I am not criticizing the recent contracts. Was not an attempt made to revise the contracts before cancellation,

Junior Grain Club May Be Sponsored By Lions Club

Would Promote Good Feeling Between Town And Country

A grain club for young farmers of the district may be sponsored this summer by Newmarket Lions Club. A proposal by W. M. Cockburn, agricultural representative, is now before the club.

The idea dates back to 1925, when a Barrie service club sponsored a farm boys' club. Mr. Cockburn told the club Monday evening, "Since then it has spread to other towns in the province.

"One of our grain club boys won first at the Markham grain show last week. That is Neil Paris, Yonge St. He is selling his grain for $1.25 a bushel. There is no difficulty in selling it.

"This club would sponsor a junior section of the grain club for boys not 21 on Nov. 1, 1938," said Mr. Cockburn. "The boys

MAY SEND PISTOL TEAMS TO U. S.

The local revolver club hopes to send two teams of four men each to the Buffalo Revolver Club tournament on April 23. R. C. Morrison is president of the club, which has a range in the town hall basement.

The club has 17 members and has two shoots a week. Ivan Flapman, Ontario revolver champion, was here on Monday evening giving instruction, and frequently visits the local club.

"This would build up a better feeling between the town and country, and would mean better farms, which would help the town."

Train Cuts Off Dog's Ear But He Don't Say Nothing

Dog Has Remarkable Escape From Death Under Train

Paddy, a field spaniel belonging to Arleigh Armstrong, local barrister, is recovering from an unusual accident. He is lucky to be recovering at all.

Paddy got run over by a train and had one ear so badly injured that it had to be amputated. Fortunately, Paddy carries his ears, which are covered with hair, at an angle which will not make his misfortune noticeable.

"Didn't you hear the whistle, Paddy?" Paddy just shakes his head.

"Did you see the wig-wag?" Paddy shakes his head.

"Didn't you hear the wig-wag, Paddy?" Paddy sits down and shakes his head again.

No doubt Paddy has had legal advice and is saving his evidence for the inquiry, if any.

CHICKEN THEFT BRINGS 3 MONTHS

Convicted of stealing 14 Barded Rock purebred chickens, the property of Lyman Davis, who lives in King township about four miles from Bolton, Francis McCleod, Bolton, was sentenced to the Ontario Reformatory for a period of three months definite, and an indefinite period not to exceed two months. The three weeks custody will be counted in the sentence. The sentence was given out by Magistrate W. F. Woodliffe, in the police court this morning.

Similar charges against Marshall Floyd and Frank Beamish both of Bolton, were dismissed by the magistrate.

All three men were represented by H. R. Lawrence, Brampton.

GUIDES ARE PRESENTED WITH TITLE TAPES

The weekly meeting of the 2nd Newmarket Girl Guide company on Thursday, March 24, opened with prayer by Dr. W. D. Muckle.

Mrs. King of the local association presented the company with company title tapes.

Mrs. W. A. McCaffrey, district commissioner, enrolled three new recruits as Guides, namely Doris Newton, Jean McFale and Margaret Cain.

The Color Party consisted of Julia Tunney, Phyllis Osborne and Willa McCaffrey. In the Union Jack game competition the Daffodil Patrol scored highest points for the best flag made.

The Guides enjoyed the story "The Little Princess Who Couldn't Cry," told in a very interesting way by Mrs. McCaffrey.

After a patrol game, "Crack the Nut," a hearty handclap was given Mrs. M. McFale for her donation of covers for the six flags to the company.

The meeting closed with "Taps."

PARKDALE PRESIDENT SPEAKS IN NEWMARKET

Last Sunday afternoon the members of the British Israel Federation had the pleasure of again hearing T. C. Colbourne, president of the B. I. branch, Parkdale, Toronto. Mr. Colbourne spoke on "The Kingdom of God." It is over two years since Mr. Colbourne spoke in Newmarket, when he spoke then on "Israel's part in the divine plan." Mr. Colbourne teaches a class of boys about fourteen in Sunday-school and it meant a good deal to arrange for a substitute in order to come here and address the meeting. Next Sunday Percy Take will be the speaker.

EXCHANGE PULPITS

Rev. W. F. Wrixon, rector of St. Mary's church, Richmond Hill, took charge of the morning service at St. Paul's church last Sunday, exchanging pulpits with Rev. A. J. Patstone.

Mr. Wrixon gave an inspiring address, taking for his text "The word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path," from Psalm 119, verse 105. Next Sunday, the rector hopes to have Archdeacon Warren speak at the morning service.

LEONARD HARMAN WILL GIVE RADIO TALK

Leonard Harman will speak from the studios of radio station CHL, Toronto, at 11.15 p.m. on Thursday, April 7. The address, which will give a viewpoint of rural youth, will be one in a series, "Youth Intervenes," which is being featured over stations from coast to coast by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

For instance, it was running on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, but wasn't doing much on Wednesday.

Gambling Makes Discontent With Saving, Pearson Says

People Who Can't Afford It Are Led To Buy Tickets

There are plenty of people in favor of legalizing sweepstakes, as proposed in the provincial legislature. It is therefore interesting to secure the opinion of one of those perhaps rarer people who take the opposite view.

"What is the matter with sweepstakes?" The Er asked P. W. Pearson, ex-warden and former Liberal M.L.A.

"Usually only a small percentage goes for the ostensible object," Mr. Pearson said. "The rest goes to expenses. Like any other form of gambling sweepstakes are demoralizing. Gambling produces false values."

"What do you mean by false values?"

"A man shall earn his bread by the sweat of his brow. This is a hope of getting something for nothing. It is that sort of thing which leads a bank clerk to rob his employer, which leads many a man to ruin."

"The low price of the tickets induces people who can least afford it to throw away their money on it. Moreover, if one person succeeds in getting a large return from such a scheme, it tends to unsettle and make dissatisfied the great majority of people who by the nature of things barely get sufficient to support their wife and family."

"It makes us dissatisfied with the principle that we must save and get a home for ourselves, and put aside for a rainy day. They say there are 250,000 losers to one winner in the Irish sweepstakes."

This Happened Even Before Uncle Tom's Eliza Ran Ice

An interesting story of the break-up of the ice on Lake Simcoe in the "forties" of the last century is told in a copy of "Smith's Canadian Gazetteer," published in 1846, and belonging to William J. Williams, Gorham St., Newmarket.

"About four years since," this volume states, "a settler on the lake was engaged to take a sleigh load of goods to the opposite side; and the winter was breaking up, and the ice on the lake was becoming honeycombed underneath, a sure sign that it would not last much longer, and he knew that if he deferred his journey for a day or two there would be no chance of getting his load across till the steamboat commenced running."

"If therefore set off with his team in the night, took his load across in safety, and started on his return home just as the sun began to rise; he knew by the appearance of the ice, and from the direction of the wind, that the ice would not be safe many hours longer, he therefore put his horses to a gallop, and kept them at that pace the whole way home (12 miles); he crossed in safety, and two hours after he had landed there was not a vestige of ice to be seen on the lake. Notwithstanding the temerity of those accustomed to the ice, it is very seldom that any serious accident, such as loss of life, occurs; horses, however, are lost every winter through the ice, but the drivers generally manage to save themselves. Very fine whitefish and muskellunge are taken in Lake Simcoe; and fine white cornelians are said to have been picked up on the shore of Kempenfelt bay."

In another place in the book it says: "Lake Simcoe is seldom ventured upon with sleighs before the end of January, and further west the winter is still shorter. Owing to the want of proper explanations, and misstatements by travellers and others who have attempted to describe the country (some of whom have seen very little of it) an idea has been formed in England that the great lakes are frozen over in winter, which is entirely a mistake."

New Light On Name "Toronto" Given By Dr. P. J. Robinson

"Since we took this country from the Indians," is a familiar phrase, but it is worth remembering that there were sections of this country that "we" purchased.

Full details of the "Toronto purchase" are given for the first time by Dr. Percy J. Robinson in a paper prepared for the Royal Society of Canada on "The Chevalier de Rocheblave and the Toronto Purchase."

Rocheblave fought for France in the struggle for supremacy in America and later fought for Britain against the rebel colonies. Rocheblave pointed out the advantages of Toronto as a centre from which to carry on the fur trade, but was not rewarded with the grant of land he asked.

Dr. Robinson calls to attention the narrative of John Long, an Indian trader who was present in 1787 when the Toronto purchase was made. Long relates: "On the 18th of September Sir John Johnson met us at the head of the bay of Kent; the instant the Indians heard of his arrival, they saluted him with a discharge of small arms, and having received some rum, they danced and sung all night their war songs; one of them I particularly noticed, which was to the following effect:

"At last our good father is arrived, he has broken the small branches, and cleared his way to us. He has given us presents in abundance, and only demands this large bed (meaning a considerable tract of land, which was described on a map)."

"At 12 o'clock the next day a council was held and Sir John laid his map before them, desiring a tract of land from Toronto to Lake Huron. This the Indians agreed to grant him, and the deed of gift being shown them, it was signed by affixing the chiefs' emblems, or figure of their respective totems, as their signatures."

Dr. Robinson states that the purchase included land from the Huron mouth to the Holland river and land between Ojibwa and Waubesa, and that the name "Toronto" comes from the northern part of the purchase.

YOUNG MEN ATTEND SCOUT LEADERS' GROUP

LOVE-SICK MAIDS APPEAR TONIGHT

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, March 31, April 1 and 2, the Pickering College Glee Club will present their annual Gilbert and Sullivan production, under the direction of R. E. K. Rourke and Frank Murch. For this year the opera "Patience" has been chosen.

In Patience, Gilbert and Sullivan have cleverly satirized and ridiculed the aesthetic movement. The opera concerns 20 love-sick maidens and their love for their aesthetic ideal, the fleshly poet, Bunthorne, who has "etherealized" Patience, the milk-maid, to whom she confesses his poetry is but a sham. Patience in her turn, loves Archibald Grosvenor, the beautiful and all-perfect, idyllic poet, but realizing that there is no virtue in loving a person so perfect as Archibald, the All-right, decides to marry Bunthorne, love for whom would indeed be unselfish.

She reaches Bunthorne just at the moment when he, made desperate by her refusal, is about to raffle himself off to the 20 love-sick maidens. Patience with noble self-sacrifice, offers herself to Bunthorne, and the 20 maidens return to their former loves, the 35th Dragons - excepting Lady Jane, who remains faithful to Bunthorne.

Upon the appearance of Grosvenor, the flicker maidens once again desert their Dragons and rapturously follow the idyllic poet. Lady Jane and Bunthorne, now plot Grosvenor's downfall. Under penalty of Bunthorne's curse, Grosvenor is told he must become common-place and lose his perfection.

Meanwhile the officers of the Dragons, hoping to win back their loves, appear in aesthetic dress and manners. Grosvenor, weary of the maidens' love and wanting only that of Patience, gives in to Bunthorne's demands. But by his cleverness Bunthorne robs himself of Patience's love, for the milk-maid now feels she can quite unselfishly love Grosvenor, since he is now a common-place young man.

Nor does Bunthorne win back his maidens, for they, believing everything Grosvenor does to be right, also throw off their aesthetic masks and return to their original loves, the Dragons. Bunthorne, the aesthete, is even deserted by the ever-faithful Lady Jane, and in the end is left alone with his aestheticism.

LOOKS AFTER PRACTICE

The Senior Christian Endeavor of the Christian church are sponsoring a social evening on Friday evening, to which they invite every young person in the town.

PLAYS GIVEN AT C.G.I.T. CONCERT

On Saturday evening, March 26, in Trinity United church, the Canadian Girls in Training held their annual concert. Three short plays were presented, "The Absent-Minded Professor."

A large and enthusiastic audience then joined in community singing. The second number on the program was a comedy-drama, "Neighbors." June Hill favored the audience with a delightful vocal solo "When Irish Eyes are Smiling."

The final play was a romance of the 12th century, "The Stolen Song." A very successful evening was brought to a close by singing "Taps."

Throughout the evening the two groups in the Junior C.G.I.T. took charge of the candy sale in a very charming manner.

ALEX GEORGAS WED

Miss Evelyn Smith and Mr. Alex. Georgas, both of Newmarket, were married at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Brooks in Toronto this week. Rev. G. Raymond Booth officiated. After a trip to New York City the couple will reside in Newmarket.

Another old resident of this community has passed away, in the person of Mrs. John Harmon. After a long illness, death came on a happy release on Saturday morning and the funeral was held from the United church on Monday afternoon, with interment in Mount Albert cemetery.

Mrs. Harmon was born at Zephyr, a daughter of the late Thos. Pickering and was married to John Harmon 54 years ago and they had lived on the farm in Scott, now occupied by their son, Herbert, until about three years ago, when they retired and came to the village.

She is survived by her husband, four sons and three daughters, Garnet, Ben and Mrs. H. Brooks, who live in the west, Robert, Paddy Sound and Mrs. H. W. Theaker, Bertha and Herbert of Mount Albert.

Rules Non-Residents Entitled To Refund

Public School Board Makes Fixed Fee For All Pupils

Increasing requests from township parents for the privilege of sending their children to school in Newmarket without paying have made a definite ruling. The Era learns from W. H. Eves, chairman.

Effective since Feb. 1, the ruling is that all township pupils must pay $2 per month, unless the parent is assessed for property in the town in accordance with the Public Schools Act.

"The average cost of our schools is $5 a month per child," Mr. Eves said. "The rate of $2 a month, which has been set for some time, is less than half the cost. It isn't that we want to discriminate against outside pupils. We have 20 to 22 of them, and we have to employ a teacher for every 40 pupils."

A good number of the pupils affected live at the north end of the town, and have a little over two miles to go to their own school on Second St. One family concerned would have to pay $8 a month for four children to attend the town school.

Before making a ruling, the board secured an interpretation of the act from N. L. Mathews, Kew, town solicitor.

The important section of the act is section 86. The Era learned from Mr. Mathews.

"Subsection 1 provides that the board shall admit any non-resident if the inspector reports that accommodation is available and the school more accessible than the non-resident's own school," Mr. Mathews said.

"The board may prescribe monthly fees not to exceed the average cost per pupil."

"Subsection 4 provides that the non-resident's school section shall be liable for a refund of the amount he pays for school taxes up to the amount paid to the school the pupil is attending."

"If the children reside more than three miles from their own school, they have a right to attend another nearer school, without the inspector's recommendation," Mr. Mathews said.

"Subsection 5 provides that if a property of a non-resident, in the municipality or school section where the pupil is attending, is assessed for an amount equal to the average assessment of residents, the children of such non-resident shall be admitted to the public school of the section or urban municipality on the same terms and conditions as children of residents."

"Mr. Eves is under the impression that non-residents are not entitled to a refund from their own sections," Mr. Mathews said.

"Which yes, they are," Mr. Mathews said. "The board didn't ask for information on that point."

OUR POLITICAL LEADERS

Moral values are more important than revenues, expenditures, surpluses or deficits. Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn and the opposition house leader, Leopold Macaulay, have announced their intention of supporting a resolution which would ask the federal government to legalize sweepstakes for the support of hospitals and other charities. We must admire the honesty of these men in openly admitting their sympathy with lotteries, but we cannot but deplore their lack of idealism, their lack of vision, their failure to learn from the experience and history of mankind. There is nothing creative or constructive about gambling. Gambling is definitely destructive and demoralizing. Gambling is the calling of the man who wants money, with the right it gives to demand services and goods from others, without giving anything in return. Community disapproval of gambling and criminal code provisions against gambling are based on man's experience that gambling and work don't mix. Successful gamblers become idlers; unsuccessful gamblers become indigents and they and their families become burdens to society. Between the successful and the unsuccessful are an army of others who do not "feel" their losses or are not conscious of the waste of their time, but who deprive themselves of greater and more lasting joys.

Mr. Hepburn Paints His Own Picture

Mr. Hepburn by implication deprecates gambling, but, says he, we are spending money on sweepstakes anyway, let's keep the money in the province. It does not occur to Mr. Hepburn to do something to discourage Ontario people from gambling. He would not attempt to make Ontario people conscious of the tremendous export of money for only a small return, or to carry on an educational campaign against gambling, or to enforce criminal code provisions. Instead, he would bring it "out into the open" (his own words), make it respectable, put the government behind it and promote it. Instead of having a comparative few buying sweepstakes tickets, Mr. Hepburn would have everybody buying them. This parallels Mr. Hepburn's method of dealing with the liquor problem and reveals shallow thinking and a lack of the reforming zeal which marks a great leader.

SHOULD MARRIED WOMEN WORK?

Morgan Baker, representative of North York in the provincial legislature, thinks that husband and wife should not both have jobs. Why not? If a woman has ability to serve her fellows, why shouldn't she do so? In many instances, women who are working are making way for other women to work in their homes. Why should women who have special training or ability, fitting them for competitive jobs, spend their time doing domestic work which may be distasteful to them? More than that, in most instances where husband and wife are both working, their combined income is not as large as that of many men whose wives are not working. Why shouldn't man and wife be free to pull together, to build up a reserve for their old age, or to give their children an education and a start in the world? We appreciate the sincerity of Mr. Baker's desire to see every body employed again, but to try to do it by keeping capable women at home is like plowing under good crops in the United States to cure the depression.

RATES, ASSESSMENTS AND TAXES

"Cobalt's Taxes Set As Before," declares a heading in the Northern News, Kirkland Lake. Naturally one is curious about this "as before" and finds "that, despite the reductions in the assessment roll, the rate will be the same as it was last year, 90 mills." In other words, Cobalt citizens are quite thankful that their rate is not higher this year. The answer apparently is that Cobalt has a low assessment. Cobalt's per capita assessment in 1936 was only $245, compared with Newmarket's $651. Picton, another town of much the same population, had a per capita assessment of $951. Per capita tax levies of the three towns (1936) were: Cobalt, $22.52; Newmarket, $34.23; Picton, $26.81. So evidently the rate is not to the swift nor the battle to the strong.

THAT GARBAGE PLAN

Assuming that garbage removal would have cost a mill on the tax rate, a person with a $6,000 assessment would pay 50 cents a month, which would be no loss, no saving. A person with a larger assessment would pay more than at present, but would have the satisfaction of knowing that Newmarket had become a cleaner, more sanitary town, and might, in the long run, pay less for hospitalization of the indigent. However, that may be far-fetched. On the other hand, the vast majority of citizens, with assessments of from $1,500 to $3,000, probably including most of the people who are not now having their garbage removed, would pay only from 12 to 25 cents a month for garbage removal. Should it be argued that because people do not feel that they can afford 50 cents a month for garbage removal, it is forcing the plan on them to give them garbage removal at a much lower cost?

A PUBLIC HEALTH NURSE NEEDED

Dr. J. H. Wesley, M.O.H., expressed the opinion at the time of the infantile paralysis epidemic last fall that Newmarket should have a school nurse all the time, not merely during an emergency. He stated that the nurse engaged at that time had, in visiting homes, unearthed all sorts of unhealthy and unsanitary conditions. There are rules of health, and a school nurse could teach us these rules. By starting our children in habits of health, we can increase greatly their usefulness and chances of success in life. The money spent will be saved to us in better health, more capable workmen (for children soon grow up) and less indigent hospitalization. Part of a mill on the tax rate would do it. Let us not be penny wise, pound foolish. The health of our children is our greatest asset.

REBELLIOUS THOUGHTS ABOUT WAR

There seems to be a considerable body of public opinion in favor of Canadian participation in any war Britain may become involved in. Parliament, for instance, cheered Mrs. Black, member for the Yukon, last week when she said that if this country was good enough for her sons to live in, it was good enough for them to die for. It is possible to agree with that statement, and still doubt if Mrs. Black's sons should feel obliged to die for Czechoslovakia or Lithuania. However, we doubt if a parliament of younger men, with hopes, families, and memories of what happened to the men and boys who fought in the last "war to end war," would have cheered Mrs. Black.

If we believe that war is wrong, now is the time to make our opinions known and our influence felt. If Britain does become involved in war, and parliament votes Canada into it, we will no longer have a chance to make up our minds, for the radio and, to some extent, the press, will be used for propaganda to make us hate whom ever we may be at war with.

It would be interesting to see the fate of a resolution, introduced into the present parliament, providing for conscription of wealth in the event of another war. It is, of course, quite as reasonable to conscript wealth as to conscript human beings for sacrifice on the field of battle.

babbled Young Chips indignantly.

"Their actions are atrocious. However, as you say, what can we do about it? Fighting doesn't do any good."

"Why, hello, Handsome," Woody greeted the Blue Jay, as he joined them. "Where did you blow from? We were just discussing the Stalling situation. But let's change the subject. What have you been doing?"

"I've run into two or three different Hawks this morning," Woody complained. "That is, I've come as near to them as I care to, after my poor late lamented brother's experience of a few weeks ago."

"Oh, I'm sure there is plenty of sweeter and tenderer meat around these days than you are," consoled Woody. "They wouldn't be interested in you."

"Not so sure," replied Handsome. "I didn't migrate from the south like a lot of the other birds that are around now, and so I didn't lose all that good fat off my bones. I would be a tastier meal than some of those skin and bone creatures that have just made a long and arduous journey."

"You're just getting over-cautious in your old age," said Young Chips. "I'm not scared of Hawks myself, although I may have been when I was younger and didn't know how to take care of myself."

"Well, you may not be, but I know that your good father and mother always have been and always will be," said the Jay. "In fact, they are so wary of them that they have always teased me about it. I wouldn't be too foolishly about the ordinary dangers of life if I were you, Young Chips. If you are, you are bound to come to grief sooner or later. Mark my words."

"Pooh! You can't get me worried," answered Young Chips jauntily. "Well, I only hope that you learn your lesson before it's too late to do any worrying at all for the simple reason that you won't be here to be able to worry," responded Handsome darkly.

The Common Round

By Isabel Inglis Colville
BLUE DANUBE

We were playing the lovely old "Blue Danube" waltzes last night, and I do not think anything ever stamped the contrast and the present state of the misery-ridden nation through which the Danube still flows.

In pre-war days, Vienna was the mecca of pleasure seekers—those who loved art, those who craved the best in music and the drama—all found something to satisfy, in the gayest European capital—the heart of Austria.

The peasants were gay and colorful, from their brilliant costumes, to their folk songs and national dances, and their country had beauty spots which many people sought in preference to the better known resorts of the other European countries.

Since the war, what a change! The struggle for a bare existence has killed the gay spirit which made the country people so charming; the nobles, and the once wealthy, reduced to a poverty so dire, that no longer can they encourage the arts, or give recognition to budding talent, which often, with that encouragement, went out into the world, to be proclaimed—genius!

It is a strange commentary on the changes which come to men and countries, that the streets of Vienna, once trodden by Haydn, Beethoven, Mozart, Schubert, Lucia, and scores of others who found there, inspiration and recognition, should now be trodden by the troops of a dictator.

In the streets where the master magicians of music once taught their lovely art, anti-semites and Jews huddle in terror, awaiting they know not what of evil.

When Johann Strauss, Jr., wrote the "Beautiful Blue Danube" and "Whispers from Vienna Woods," these unforgettable waltzes of the "Waltz King" were acclaimed in the ballroom of the Hapsburg Palace and wherever the light-hearted Austrians met for pleasure. From the palace once pervaded by their haunting strains, Hitler gave, to a far from gay Austria, his bombastic, meek sentimental and quite defiant speech.

Austria, on that day of Hitler's entry, was like some of the old feudal castles—above, the lord of the castle and his friends and retainers, danced and made merry—while below, in the dungeons, suffered and languished the victims of their raids.

Napoleon made a triumphal entry into Vienna, but inspired no such terror as is felt wherever Hitler's iron hand holds sway.

I read of an Austrian nobleman, who, reduced to poverty after the war, found work in a restaurant. One evening the orchestra started to play "The Beautiful Blue Danube." When the familiar strains fell on his ear, he dropped his tray, fled from the restaurant, and ended his misery in a nearby river—the contrast between the old and the new was too great.

But he, although his courage wasn't equal to the task, had a chance to make a new life for himself, but what of those in these days, whose views do not coincide with those of the conqueror?

Many, deprived of the young nobleman's chance to make good in a new land, unable indeed to leave their own, are having recourse to his remedy—taking their own lives and the lives of those dear to them.

In Austria, religious liberty has flourished—but what now? Persecution of clerics and Jews follows Hitler like some deadly gas, spreading over the fair land through which the Danube flows.

We in this favored land of ours, read our newspapers, listen to radio news regarding all these tragic developments, and yet, can we realize for one moment, what it would mean if someone said, "you shall do this and so, you shall believe this and that—if you don't—well, there are concentration camps and even prisons." We use our prisons for criminals—when and if we catch them—but could we stand by and see our clergymen cast into prison for preaching what they believe?

Can we imagine what would happen if our prime minister ordered all masonic halls closed or forbade our newspapers to publish this and that, and ended by casting a few opposition members into prison, or like the duchess in Alice in Wonderland, shouting "Off with their heads!"

One shrinks from the thought that in this century, supposedly Christian and civilized, persecutions and atrocities can take place and we sit back and wonder what will happen next.

History offers some consolation in that autocrats have nearly all met a Waterloo, but not before blood flowed freely, and a triumphant democracy only emerged through suffering and sacrifice.

The beautiful blue Danube still flows through Austria, but its namesake waltz will not often penetrate through the hard layer of militarism which shrouds that unhappy land, and we, who still love its smooth, flowing rhythm, so reminiscent of its name, will never listen to it again without a thought for the unhappy land of its birth, and a little prayer that might will not always triumph, but that the democratic nations may unite and say "thus far and no further."

There seems a strange lack of unity and co-operation even among those nations whose ideals are supposedly identical, and yet what could they not do, without recourse to arms, if they were animated by a great common love for humanity that would preclude fear of one another and leave only the desire for the good of all.

The storm on Good Friday caused quite a bit of damage around town. The high wind was too much for one of the leaded glass windows in the Methodist church and it came in, breaking to pieces. A chimney on the residence of Aubrey Davis was blown over, and in falling, smashed a hole in the roof. A willow tree on Georgian Street was uprooted, and fences were levelled in the adjacent country. The roof was blown off the barn of Wm. Grieg near Queensville and also off the barn of Wm. Flanagan on the 14th concession of East Gwillimbury.

Church and State, Changing Governments, Clash in the Pacific,

March has been very mild as far as weather goes; but in the international sphere there has been no end of threshing and stamping about. China, Austria, Poland and Spain vie with each other for recognition in the news. One evening we managed to hear five newscasts on the radio. Two of these featured the Polish-Lithuanian situation while the other three omitted it altogether. So many of the dispatchers have been prefixed by "it is reported" that it has been very difficult to follow the course of events.

Those of us who have felt very keenly on the subject of peace have had reason to feel depressed by the violence rampant in our world. The stories of blood and ruin coming from China and Spain have not been encouraging. Like Bertrand Russell in the days of the Great War we "have a simple horror of all bloody conflict." We are too sensitive to the welfare of others to believe that property of persons or of nations deserves the sacrifice of human life for its defence.

Only yesterday I heard an address by a friend who has just returned from the Orient. During the return journey he was relating stories of murder, destruction and rape at the hands of the Japanese army in Shanghai. A travelling companion who had been a member of a famous Canadian regiment in the Great War said: "But that is not Japanese; that is war. It is always like that." While the Japanese army has been destroying the Chinese coast the Japanese people have been fed the usual lies about the justice of their war.

Twenty years after the Great War, Canada is paying over a hundred million dollars a year as interest on her war debt. The total annual expenditures for the League of Nations by all the nations of the world is only about nine million dollars. Little Canada pays over ten times as much in interest on the debts of the last war as all the world spends in trying to prevent the next.

The individual citizen feels lost in the face of a threatening situation. What can we do? We can at least try to get some understanding of the background of international affairs. There are in our home a number of low priced booklets published by the Foreign Policy Association of the United States. They deal with Dictatorship.

Toronto clergy vigorously protested the proposal to legalize sweepstakes in Ontario, early this week. On the other hand, Premier Hepburn intimated on Tuesday, that hospitals might get one quarter of the proceeds if the province operates sweepstakes. Irish hospitals get but 16 per cent.

Henry Ford is back at work after a two months' vacation and has stated that he believes a prosperous era is ahead. "Deprive the world of the brains of men and women above 30 and everything must come to a standstill. Neither age alone nor youth alone can run the world's affairs," he stated.

From Ottawa on Tuesday comes the news that treasury officials believe that there is a good chance of balancing the nation's budget as the fiscal year draws to a close.

A net deficit of $12,345,867 for 1937 is reported by Canadian National Railways. This is an improvement of $1,000,000 over the preceding year. It was reported from Ottawa on Tuesday.

J. E. Honck resigned the chairmanship of the milk control board on Monday, for purely personal reasons, Hon. P. M. Dewar, minister of agriculture, announced.

British military authorities in Shanghai protested to the commander-in-chief of the Japanese army on Tuesday about the attitude displayed by Japanese officers, and men toward British soldiers.

A successful appendectomy removal operation was performed on the four-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rock of near Listowel on Monday. Dr. D. E. Robertson, chief surgeon in the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, stated that such operations are not uncommon in Toronto and are generally successful.

The contour of the Niagara gorge below the falls was changed on Monday when several tons of lime between the Whirlpool bridge rock and earth plunged down the 168-foot bank from the west shore, and the Michigan Central railroad bridge. The terrific rumbling caused by the falling rock attracted tourists viewing the remains of the collapsed Falls View bridge.

POLICE COURT PAYS $41 COSTS IN POISON CASE

Bethel West, Holland Landing, was remanded for trial until April 5, on a charge of illegally manufacturing spirits, and allowed out on bail of $500, at the local police court last Thursday. He was also remanded on a charge of creating a disturbance. Thos. and Chas. Patterson were each charged with selling liquor, and with selling to a minor. They were remanded until April 5.

B. Brown, Jos. Newman, and Bruce Vance, charged with having liquor not purchased under the Liquor Control Act, were also remanded until April 5.

All five men are from Lloyd-town.

Albert Lawson, Dovercourt Rd., Toronto, pleaded not guilty to a charge of causing property damage greater than $50 to a hydrant at the corner of Queen and Prospect Sts. and not reporting the accident.

"I heard a crash and looked out the window just as a car was backing away," testified E. Edgar. "I saw the hydrant was leaning over sideways, so I took the license number of the car." "I saw the car crash into the hydrant when I was about 200 feet away," testified Seneca Cook. "The driver got out, then drove away. I recognized him, as he passed me, as Max Lawson. The car drove back and I stopped it and told Max he had better report the accident to the police."

"We traced the owner of the car through the department of highways and found that it was registered in the name of Albert Lawson and that his son, Max, didn't have an operator's license," testified Constable Sloss. "The hydrant cost $119 to replace."

"My wife, son-in-law and son came up to Newmarket to visit. I always forbid my son to drive the car but he took it from where my son-in-law had parked it and drove around town," testified the father, Albert Lawson. "He is just 18 and this was the second time he has ever driven a car."

"I dismiss the case," stated the magistrate.

The Canada Starch Company was charged with speeding through Aurora. The driver sent a letter to the court saying the car was not out of the garage on the day in question. The magistrate ordered that the driver be notified that he must send affidavits to the court.

Geo. H. Post, Hillsdale Ave., Toronto, charged with parking in a prohibited area, was given a minimum penalty of $1 and costs.

"The truck belonging to the accused was parked on the south side of Timothy St. and there was not room for the bus to get by," testified Constable Mount.

"The market square was just a short distance away and the truck could easily have been parked there."

"I parked there because I had a flat tire and didn't want to ruin the tube," said Mr. Post. "I was just waiting while a tire was coming up from Aurora."

Carl Makela, Toronto, who owns a farm in King township, was charged with placing poison in a position to be easily taken of by any dog, and with killing a dog with poison. On the first charge he was fined $5 and costs amounting to $41, or 30 days. The other charge was dismissed.

During the hearing, all witnesses were excluded from the court-room.

"I started to work for Mr. Makela last October," testified John Gould, who lives on the accused's farm. "I have two dogs and Mr. Makela keeps two police dogs there. A small black and white dog belonging to Robert Rose, a neighbor, was at our place all week."

"On Sunday, Feb. 20, my wife, brother-in-law and I were at the house when Mr. Makela came up from Toronto. I saw him go to the car, take some stuff out and then he went behind the barn and threw the stuff away. My dog got a piece of it in its mouth and Mr. Makela took it out and threw it over the bank. Later my other dog got a piece of meat and I took it away. I examined it and saw it was a piece of meat with some bread inside done up with an elastic band."

"I saw the Rose dog in the barnyard after the stuff was thrown out. About a half-hour later the dog came up near the house, took a fit in the yard and went out toward the steam-bath house, where it fell in a puddle and later died. During this time Mr. Makela was away getting some bran for a cow. The following Tuesday night I turned the package I had taken from my dog over to Sergeant Barraclough."

"Is it right that you refused to leave about three months ago when Mr. Makela asked you?" questioned Mr. Rose, defence counsel.

"He hired me for a year and I told him I wanted a year's wages," answered Mr. Gould.

"You and the accused have hardly been on speaking terms since that time, have you?"

No answer.

"Mr. Makela comes up each Sunday and brings supplies for the family and feed for his dog, doesn't he," asked Mr. Rose.

"Yes."

"It shows you didn't like the Rose dog very much or you would have called a veterinary or tried to help it when it was struggling in the pond," stated Mr. Rose, counsel for accused.

"I wasn't my dog," answered Mr. Gould. "After it died I took it in my car down to Mr. Rose's."

Mrs. Rose Gould testified that she and her brother went down to where the dog was lying in the middle and she picked it up. However, the dog went stiff, so she put it back in the puddle.

"Mr. Gould gave me the piece of meat he took from the dog's mouth," testified Sergeant Barraclough. "This meat smelled of liquorice. I later turned it over to Inspector Weatherston of the Humane Society."

"The following Sunday we went to Makela's farm and saw him there. We asked him if he had thrown out any poison on a previous Sunday and he said he had only thrown out some herring. He took us into his own private bedroom, which was locked and produced a bag containing several handfuls of meat and meat with the same odor of liquorice. He told us he had brought up the poison for rats and that Mrs. Gould objected to him putting it out."

Inspectors Weatherston and Burrows of the Humane Society, Toronto, testified they went with Sergeant Barraclough to Makela's farm and later brought the dead dog to Toronto. Dr. Zeidler examined the dog and an analysis of the stomach showed strychnine and a faint odor of liquorice. The small pieces of bread and meat, also examined by Dr. Zeidler, were also found to contain poison.

"I run a tailoring business on King St.," testified Carl Makela. "I come to every Sunday to bring supplies for the Goulds and I take scraps of meat to the dogs. The Sunday previous to the one the dog was poisoned, I brought up some rat poison and I left it on the kitchen table while I went to feed my dogs. Mrs. Gould forbade me to put it so the children might get it, so I locked it up in my room. It was a piece of dog lying in the puddle. Mrs. Gould told me about it, but I thought she was fooling and didn't bother looking. After the dog died, Mr. Gould accused me of poisoning it and claimed it was going to cost me some money."

"Where did you get this rat poison?" questioned N. L. Mathews, K.C., crown attorney. "It was in a box in my room, which was a parody on the old favorite 'Silver Threads Among the Gold'."

After the debate, Mrs. Frank Marritt gave a short address in which she criticized the debaters in an instructive way.

After leaving the church, the group from Queensville and Ravenshoe, the judges and the executive members of the local Y.P.U., spent an enjoyable hour at the home of Mrs. Munroe King, where refreshments were served.

Speedy Lawyer Gives Rooster Fair Start, Wins White Meat

Jack Crozier, popular Sutton lawyer and sportsman, gave a fine display of game hunting on Friday morning when he captured a prize rooster, after a three-minute chase which terminated in the Sutton park.

While helping Nora Noble, who was raking leaves on her front lawn, Don MacDonald opened the trunk door of the family automobile, when, in a flash, Dr. Noble's prize rooster escaped and started toward the park. After giving the bird "a fair start," Jack gave chase, assisted by three or four spectators, but it remained for "game-hunter Crozier" to capture the elusive bird. After the chase, in speaking of the incident, Jack said: "My only regret is that it wasn't Byron Kay's greyhound."

Rumor has it that the bird is shortly to decorate the Noble dinner table, and Jack has been promised "a thick slice of the white meat" as a reward.

SUTTON PUBLIC OPINION IS BLAMED ON RADIO

A large crowd attended the Young People's Union inter-society debate between Ravenshoe and Sutton in the United church on Friday night, on the subject: "Resolved that the radio exerts more influence upon public opinion than does the press."

The decision of the judges, Mrs. Frank Marritt, Jack Winch and Ernest Madden, after much deliberation, awarded the decision to the affirmative team of Grant Nighwander and Clifford Gordon, over the Sutton entry, composed of Gladys Burnham and John Noble. Murray Huntley acted as chairman for the debate.

Charles Buckley, president of the local Y.P.U., introduced a male quartet of Queensville, composed of Fred Dew, Terry Doane, Ewart Madden and Murray Huntley. The group sang many favorite selections at the insistence of the audience. George Eldridge of Keswick sang a solo and returned after the debate to sing two encores: "Mother Macrae" and "I May Not Pass Again This Way."

As a final selection the male quartet sang a group of comedy sketches, among which was a parody on the old favorite "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

After the debate, Mrs. Frank Marritt gave a short address in which she criticized the debaters in an instructive way.

After leaving the church, the group from Queensville and Ravenshoe, the judges and the executive members of the local Y.P.U., spent an enjoyable hour at the home of Mrs. Munroe King, where refreshments were served.

BELHAVEN CELEBRATE HALF CENTURY MARRIED

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kay experienced a pleasant surprise when invited to the home of their eldest son, Erhlyn, on Monday evening, March 7, to find that the children and grandchildren and a few friends had gathered there to celebrate with them on their golden wedding anniversary.

The room was beautifully decorated in yellow and white. Thirty guests sat down to a sumptuous meal provided by the daughters. The tables were nicely arranged with yellow daffodils and tapers. On the wedding table was placed a beautifully decorated wedding cake, revealing their matrimonial path from the uniting of hearts in 1888, to the golden sunset in 1938.

A very appropriate address was read by Kenneth Harnden, to which Mr. Kay humorously replied. The family then presented Mr. and Mrs. Kay with a well-filled purse.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Kay were born in Georgina. Mrs. Kay was formerly Elizabeth Crossberry. Both are enjoying good health. They have one daughter, Mrs. Wm. Stevenson of Virginia, and five sons. Rev. Wm. Kay of Warkworth, Erhlyn, on the base-line, Norman of Queensville, Frank of Sutton and Lloyd of Belhaven, and twelve grandchildren.

SUTTON WEST COTTAGERS TAKE GLACIER SNAPS

The ice, which is piling up along the shore of Lake Simcoe, is higher than for many years, having attained a height of 25 feet in several places. Driven by a strong wind which began on Wednesday afternoon of last week, the ice began to break up and pile upon the shores.

A portion of Willow Beach was the first place to draw attention, when, on Thursday morning, after an exceptionally strong wind had blown all night, the ice was found to have crossed the lake-shore road, where traffic was brought to a standstill for about an hour. Where there were huge rocks on the shore, the huge cakes of ice were crushed and formed a series of miniature mountains, ten to 25 feet in height. The majority of the damage was done where the smooth, wide beach offered little or no resistance to the huge tract of ice. In these places the ice moved slowly across the sandy shore, uprooting trees and finally coming to rest on the far side of the highway.

Roadmen of North Gwillimbury, under the direction of Carson Pollock, were soon at the scene, and began the work of clearing the ice by means of bars, axes and ice-longs. Cedar trees, logs and in one instance the roofs of a large tree were among the debris needing removal before traffic could be resumed.

The summer residents at Jackson's Point, in some instances, had their pump-houses, which are largely located on the shore, crashed and pushed against the high banks by the ice. A cottage at the end of the town-line, although located about 15 feet from the steep bank, had its open verandah almost covered with the pulverized ice.

On Sunday afternoon summer residents, coming up to satisfy themselves that their own summer homes were not damaged, were, along with the local residents, busily engaged taking pictures of the huge ice formations. One resident stated that the ice was higher this year than it had been for ten or 12 years.

Rev. Mr. Fockler occupied the pulpit of the United church on Sunday morning and preached a very fine sermon from the parable of the lost coin, making a plea for the re-establishment of a completely Christian home.

Mr. Fockler said: "It is strange how many are sane about everything except their own souls," and he asked that the congregation thoroughly search their homes for the lost coins of life. The choir sang a special selection very nicely.

The evening service was under the direction of the Y. P. U. whose president, Kenneth Boothby, was in charge, being assisted by Miss Joan Baines, Miss Helen Smith and Royden Connell. Special music was provided by the Young People's choir, and a very fine solo sung by George Altridge.

MARCH GARDENING

BY DELPHINIUM

The week of March 20 was a record week. On the 21st we dug artichokes. The ground was somewhat muddy and the fork slid along frost in places.

On the 22nd we dug horse radish. We could not get complete roots on account of frost, but fine large roots, five or six inches long, and they were clean and crisp. Later, on Friday, we spent most of the day in the garden, cleaning up and digging artichokes. The soil would have plowed well. That I consider a record for March. Now it is cold and frozen, and the order of garden seeds just received must bide a wee before going into the ground.

Do you grow garlic? Probably the reason factory-made pickles have a different flavor from home-made pickles is because garlic is used. Garlic sets may be ordered with your seeds, planted as Dutch sets, and each "clove" or set will grow into a whole circle of "cloves." A very little piece of clove is required to flavor a dish of salad.

FORD OFFERS TWO NEW CARS in the low-price field

There are two new Ford cars for 1938—the De Luxe and the Standard—differing in appearance, appointments and price—but built to the same high standard of mechanical excellence.

Both are big, impressive cars, and thoroughly modern in appearance. Both have the famous Centre-Poise Ride, Ford Easy-Action Safety Brakes, and the other distinctive Ford features.

Both bring you the basic advantages of the 85-horsepower Ford V-8 engine.

V-type 8-cylinder engines were used only in expensive cars before Ford made them available in The Universal Car. Eight cylinders give great smoothness and flexibility. Compact V-type construction leaves more room for passengers and luggage.

Both new cars are economical to operate. Economy has always been a Ford tradition. The facts of Ford V-8 economy are confirmed by the findings of owners, who report 22 to 27 miles per gallon of gasoline. Value is also a Ford tradition.

Both cars, in proportion to price, represent true Ford value. The De Luxe costs slightly more than the Standard but provides extra style. De Luxe closed Sedan body types have considerably more passenger room and luggage space.

More people bought the 1937 Ford V-8 than any other 1937 make. It was a good car. But these are better cars, because Ford improvement goes on constantly. You'll realize that when you see and drive either new Ford V-8 for 1938.

$30 A MONTH, with reasonable down-payment, buys any new Ford V-8 car under T. F. C. National Finance Plan.

Sweepstake Proposal Not Approved By Local Clergy

Shows Tendency To Lower Moral Standards, Pastor Says

Premier M. F. Hepburn's move for legalization of sweepstakes in Ontario has no support among Aurora clergymen. The Era learned on Tuesday. Nor was his description of protesting ministers as "hypocrites" a popular one.

His reported opinions on the subject were out of place in the mouth of a premier, Rev. A. R. Park felt. The move for sweepstake legalization showed a tendency of the times, the Baptist minister felt, toward a lowering of moral standards.

Dr. J. Stanley Glen, of the Presbyterian church, derided the idea of getting "something for nothing." Speculation was not justified merely by law, he felt, or because it was popular with a number of people. Speeding was popular with some motorists he pointed out, but that would not justify the government in withdrawing traffic officers and permitting it.

Surprise Alarm Finds Public School Pupils On Their Toes

Fire Chief Rowe Expresses Satisfaction With Fire Drill

By JOHN CRYSDALE, JR.

"Fire," yells the teacher, and out of the rooms the pupils come swarming as from the downstairs hall comes a fast ring of the bell. Four pupils from room two stopped their grammar lesson, jumped down the stairs and opened the doors before the first battalion of pupils came surging down the stairs.

After one minute and 20 seconds, the upper classes were out, lined up in orderly fashion, and wishing that the school was really on fire.

To make it more realistic, say they, a bonfire was burning across the road. Meanwhile,

Third Form Again Triumphs In High School Basketball Contest

Fred Pugsley Gets Twelve Points To Lead In 26-2 Victory

Having been trounced by those in third form who were not members of senior and junior basketball teams, form 1B decided to search for allies and then to repeat their challenge. They looked for aid to second form and form 1A, but were again decisively trounced, 26-2.

The experience of the third-formers was too much for first and second form material, though they fought valiantly an uphill battle from the starting whistle. The lower school boys were a trifle slow in getting passes away and seemingly hate to dribble, but undoubtedly another year will show marked improvement in their play.

Fred Pugsley, for third form, showed great ability in being in the right place at the right time, and his efforts resulted in 12 points for his team, mostly from close shots on rebounds.

At half-time the score was 10-0 for third form. The first basket after the beginning of the third quarter was tallied by Russel Billings, who had taken one shot and then retrieved the ball to shoot more accurately. Third form, during the final two cantos, added ten more points to their total to give them their total of 26.

Teams—Third form: Jennings, Walkington, Pugsley, Fingold, Cystyle, J. Hughes, Follitt, King, Carr, Preston.

First and second form: Davis, Rawlings, Kyle, P. Hughes, Trent, Nesbitt, Thompson, Johnson, Fry, Stevens.

CO-OP WOMEN MEET

Mrs. B. Harrison, Mrs. L. Wilson, Mrs. R. C. Swerdfeger and Mrs. Judd will be hostesses at the regular monthly meeting of the co-operative women's guild to be held in Aurora on Monday evening.

Music will be provided by Mrs. Bisette and Miss Una Martin. Mrs. John Stuart and Mrs. Bisette will have charge of the study portion of the program.

"Governments should legislate for the good of the people," Dr. E. J. Thompson, minister of the United church, said, "Aside from the moral angle, legalizing sweepstakes would not be for the good of the people. I feel about this as I feel about the liquor problem. Money spent on liquor and sweepstakes could be spent better for other purposes."

"Very foolish," expressed Rev. G. O. Lightbourn's opinion of the premier's utterances. "People are not hypocrites because they don't approve of sweepstakes," he said.

FESTIVAL ENTRIES CLOSE

The music festival committee will meet in the council room on Tuesday night. Saturday will be the last day for entries in the festival, it has been announced.

downstairs, four pupils from one of the grades downstairs had opened the back doors and then these pupils marched out in 35 seconds.

The pupils of the downstairs rooms were warned that there would be a fire drill sometime during the day, Wednesday. The upstairs were warned about one before Easter. Principal J. G. McDonald warned the teachers, but not the pupils. Fire Chief Rowe and Mr. Browning are satisfied with the result and the pupils hope that there will be many more surprise drills.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL CLASSES SHARE TROPHY HONORS

ABOUT TOWN

NEWSPAPER WAR

Maybe we were a very observant child or perhaps we have a dash of elephant blood in our veins . . . we remember with considerable vividness the cartoons published in the daily press during the war of 1914-18.

The Kaiser, with his upturned moustache, and the long-nosed Crown Prince (whose head, often as not, was made to appear on a dachshund) were made objects of ridicule in each edition. The Kaiser was made the author of such gems as "Me and Gott," which he hissed through his teeth as he was pictured busily hacking off the heads of women and children.

The cartoonists had a field-day, illustrating the anti-Germany hymn of hate. And we all cheered them on. Hatred became a virtue . . . to be inculcated as such in the minds of young and old alike.

Twenty years have passed since "we" won the war. Twenty years ago we disarmed Germany, saved the world for democracy, and ended the war to end war. We remember the whistles blowing, so we must have won.

Those who missed all those splendid cartoons and failed to hear the whistles, because they were too young to remember seeing and hearing, need spend no time in regret. For the cartoonists are at it again. Hitler and Mussolini have assumed the roles played by the Kaiser and his son, but the words and music are the same.

Beginning with the time, a little over a year ago, when eminent Englishmen strolled across the dominions to the refrain of "Get in the empire or get out," we have been gradually sold on the idea that war might again be a necessary thing.

Whether the attempt was and is deliberate, we are not wise enough to know. But the result is the same . . . a public feeling of unreasoning hatred towards those who, rightly or wrongly, are caricatured as our enemies. We may have to fight Germany again. We may be right or wrong in doing so. We don't know the answers, but surely we are entitled to reasons. A cartoon, or a foreign correspondent's need for a pay cheque—resulting in an inflated public sentiment—are not reasons for war.

Yet the volunteer in the next world war, will, we prophesy, go to battle with only the haziest notion of what it's all about. He will go to war without having had an opportunity to vote on whether he will go or not. He will be told to go by a government that has never taken the issue to the country.

All you know, and all we know, is that in event of certain decisions, over which we exercise little control, we will go to war. The why and wherefore will be left to the historians. Our chances of reading the history books will be slim.

So what? Just this . . . the time to prevent or avoid participation in the next European border squabble is before that squabble begins. A declaration of war deserves as much attention as a money by-law.

Let's talk about it. Let's hear our elected representatives talk about it. And if war would appear to be a possibility, let's take a vote on it. Let reason replace hysteria.

TEAM SEEKS HOCKEY CHAMPIONSHIP SATURDAY

Local Hockey Squad Meets Orangeville In Toronto Gardens

A "big city" setting will be given to Aurora's quest for a hockey championship, when the Jubilees journey to Maple Leaf Gardens on Saturday afternoon to take part in their second game with the Orangeville Greenshirts. The team will not travel alone.

Dr. C. R. Boulding, mayor, has declared a holiday on Saturday from two to six o'clock in the afternoon, to enable the townsfolk to journey with the team en masse. The merchants will be open for business again in the evening, it is learned.

Local bands are planning to attend and the team will have supporters from the shores of Lake Simcoe right down to Lake Ontario. And there'll be a hot time in the old town at night if the Jubilees pull a win.

If anything, local fans took the Monday game against Orangeville too lightly. The Greenshirts pack plenty of power and speed, and the issue was in doubt up until the final minute.

Tie Game Is Answer To Fifth Form Basketball Challengers

Dudley Wilcox, George Davis Star In Cage Tilt

Taking their cue from third form, who recently took on the rest of the school in a basketball challenge game, fifth form seeing their prestige ebbing away, snarled a challenge to the lower room, at the high school last Thursday.

Quick to grasp any opportunity of humbling the arrogant fifth formers, the school gleefully accepted the challenge, but were unable to defeat them. However, they came as close as they possibly could, and the game ended in an 8-8 tie.

Both teams seemed content in trying to stop the opposition from scoring, instead of going out after baskets themselves. As a result the game was marked by very close checking.

George Billings counted first with a free shot and George Davis dashed in to tally on a rebound to give fifth form a 3-1 edge at the end of the first quarter.

The school made a come-back in the second quarter with big Dudley Wilcox leading the charge. Wilcox waded in, parked beneath the basket and tallied twice on rebounds. Blythe scored on a fifth form free shot to tie it up at half-time.

Close checking prevented any scoring in the third quarter. Ken Davis put fifth form two points up at the beginning of the fourth spasm with a nice shot from the "blue line."

The school evened the score again with a basket from Ted Sheridan. Then Paul Knowles gave the school the lead for the first time by netting from close in.

It remained for George Davis to save the fifth formers from defeat. On a double foul he caught both shots to make it 8-8. Wilcox and George Davis were the big guns of the encounter with four points each.

Teams—fifth form: Teasdale, Billings, G. Davis, Holikka, Blythe, Westcott, K. Davis.

School: Lloyd, Sheridan, Follitt, Kerr, Wilcox, Kyle, Knowles, Walker.

Eversley

March 22 was an ideal day for a farm sale, and around the noon hour cars and trucks began to park along the road in front of Maple Avenue Farm, where Walter Lloyd's sale of farm stock and implements was taking place. There was a large crowd of buyers and Mr. Prentice handled the sale well. The horses were at their best, full of mettle, fat, shining and bedecked. The huge cow stables were filled with cows and fattening stock, and these sold rapidly and well.

The sale was in every way a success, and no doubt the warmth of the weather and the firming earth made conditions ideal.

Walter Lloyd and Mrs. Lloyd are moving to Eversley to share the large farmhouse formerly known as the Rogers farm, now owned by John Cairns, with his brother, Will, recently returned from the west. His friends rejoice that Walter's health has improved and that the warm weather may help to a complete recovery.

A fine list of prizes has been arranged for the eucure party to be held by the Pride of York L.T.B., No. 468, in the Orange Hall on Monday night.

The Jubilees are fortunate in taking a win with them to Toronto on Saturday, and the endurance which has enabled them to stage strong last-period rallies in former encounters will help them to take more kindly to the big ice.

With the exception of minor cuts and bruises, the team is in good shape, and win or lose, Orangeville players will know they've been in a hockey game by the time the final whistle sounds on Saturday. The game starts at 3 p.m.

Both Orangeville and Aurora hockey squads will have some time to become more familiar with playing conditions on the bigger Toronto ice. Orangeville had a practice in the "Gardens" this morning, and the Jubilees had a short session at six tonight.

VANDORF MICHAEL GUTHRIE DIES AT VANDORF

One of the oldest and most highly esteemed and respected citizens, in the person of Michael Guthrie, passed peacefully to rest at his home here on Monday night, March 28, following a weak turn he suffered ten days before.

He was the son of Thomas Guthrie and Ellen Kelly, and was born at Vivian on April 5, 1859 (seventy-nine years ago). He was the last surviving member of a family of four daughters and four sons. He married Miss Ellen Carroll, of Vandorf, who died 13 years ago. The late Mr. Guthrie was of a reserved but friendly disposition. He was a man who always spoke kindly of others and a beautiful memory of a loving father and a good neighbor is left behind him, which will be cherished by those who knew him best and loved him most.

For 15 years he was employed at Van Nostrand's sawmill. Then he bought the farm where he has lived for the past 53 years. He was able to help about the farm until a few days ago.

Jubilees Win First Game In Last Minute

McComb's Second Goal Of Contests Breaks Up 3-3 Deadlock

TEAMS SHOW SPEED

Aurora's Jubilee Juniors got one hand on the "C" championship trophy in Kitchener on Monday night, when "Joint" McComb gave the game against Orangeville Greenshirts a story-book ending, tallying the winning goal in the last minute of play.

The Orangeville lads lived up to their reputation as a fast, clever team, and the Jubilees were kept stepping for the full three periods.

A Jeffries-Patterson play brought Orangeville their first goal, after 17 minutes of play in the first period. Preston tied the count soon after, however, on a pass from James. The burly defenceman took a knockout count on the play, when a stick caught him in the mouth, and he is now sporting a stitched lip.

Patterson went off to serve a Greenshirt penalty in the sixth minute of the second period, and the Aurora lads, led by Scotty Blair, a few seconds before Patterson returned to the ice. McComb scored brilliantly on a pass from Collings and for the first half of the period Aurora had it all their own way. Gillespie led a come-back attack at the half-way mark, however, and he cut down the play.

Press Has More Influence Than Radio, Debaters Say

Temperanceville Y. P. S. Gets Decision From Local Group

The problem of a mythical family, in alternately listening to the radio and reading a newspaper, enlivened a debate between the Young People of Aurora United church and the society in Temperanceville on Friday night.

"Resolved that the radio exerts more influence on public opinion than does the press," formed the topic of the debate. Adele Duffin and Alan Richardson upheld the affirmative for Aurora and lost a close decision to the negative side, represented by Milly Umehara and Mae Harman of Temperanceville.

"The whole family can listen to the radio at once," pointed out Alan Richardson. "It would be difficult to divide a newspaper to satisfy family of 17." The lady of the house could listen to a political speech while preparing supper, he stated.

In refuting this latter argument Miss Harman stated that voting was a matter of too much importance to be decided while cooking supper. She quoted the present of a large radio chain to the effect that the radio could only give news of the bulletin type. She cited the popular radio newscasting phrase, "Further details will be found in your newspaper."

"Why have news in black and white when it changes every hour?" Miss Duffin asked. "What happens to the news when it is wrapped around the tea leaves and put in the garbage pail?"

The newspaper had been used to make radio known, Miss Umehara contended. The press led in cultural value she believed. She doubted if a family of 17 could agree on the same radio program. "One picture is worth a thousand words," she quoted, and pointed out that pictures formed a prominent part of newspaper make-up.

In awarding the decision to Temperanceville the judges were unanimous in praising the quality of the debating and in particular the work of Miss Umehara.

Mrs. L. Harman, Miss Mabel Jennings, and Aubrey Lloyd took part in the devotional period, and Mildred Follitt sang a solo.

George Bilbrough made a vote of appreciation of Temperanceville as hosts, at the conclusion of the supper which followed the debate.

WIN EUCURE PRIZES

Prizewinners at the final eucure of the Rebekah lodge this season, were: first ladies, Mrs. G. West, Kettleby; second, Mrs. Ed. Smith; first gentlemen, J. Germain; second, G. Hastings.

Aurora lead to one goal after 13 minutes of play. A few minutes later he gave Leach the assist that tied up the game for the Greenshirts.

Both squads burned up the ice throughout the third period in an effort to break the tie. Play became hectic and at the 14-minute mark, Wilson, starry centre man for the Jubilees, and Currie, of the Greenshirts, both received penalties. Later, Gillespie took a rest in the cooler.

Then, with 50 seconds of play remaining, McComb took a pass from the hard-working Graham and flipped the rubber into the net, making it 4-3 for the Jubilees.

The Greenshirt first line, rumored to be Toronto-bound next year, gave the Aurorans the most trouble, and were dangerous every time they got inside the opposition's blue line. The Jubilees showed few weaknesses and deserved all-star rating on the night's play.

The refereeing was done by Hainsworth and Hillman of Kitchener, and while there were no disputes, both men had difficulty in keeping on top of the play.

NEIL FARIS WINS FIRST WITH OATS

The second annual York county seed fair, held at Markham two weeks ago, under the joint sponsorship of the agricultural societies of the county, proved most successful from the standpoint of entries, quality of exhibits and attendance. According to Agricultural Representative W. M. Cockburn of Newmarket, who is secretary of the seed fair, there was a slight reduction in the number of entries, due to the exhibits being restricted to 1937 seed. Although last season was a poor seed year, the quality of the exhibits was superior to last year's fair.

Eighty-five exhibits were lined up in their respective classes, representing 30 exhibitors and the judges had some difficulty in placing some of the larger classes such as late oats with 16 entries, barley with 11, fall wheat eight, red clover seven, alfalfa and early oats, six each.

Educational displays by government departments including the Ontario crops branch, the chemistry department of the O.A.C., the botany division of the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa and the Canadian Seed Growers' Association were new features this year. A number of commercial exhibits were also arranged by various companies interested in seeds, feeds and fertilizers.

During the morning, the high school pupils visited the fair and in the afternoon the portion of the hall reserved for seats was filled to capacity by farmers for the educational program. President L. P. Evans of Gormley, in opening the meeting, thanked all who had co-operated to make the show a success and called on W. M. Cockburn to take the chair for the balance of the afternoon. The chief speakers were G. A. Scott of the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, who explained the value of the new mercury dust treatment of seed in controlling many other diseases carried on seed besides smut. R. J. Bryden of the chemistry department of the Ontario Agricultural College discussed soil fertility problems.

The judges were Dr. G. P. McRostie of the Ontario Agricultural College; W. J. W. Lennox and C. L. S. Palmer of the Dominion seed branch, Toronto; and Jas. Leach of the Ontario Agricultural College.

KING COUNCIL REQUESTS NEW PROVINCIAL HIGHWAY

The King township council, meeting at Nobleton last Saturday afternoon, decided to request the Ontario department of highways to arrange a conference to discuss taking over the eighth concession of King as a provincial highway and reverting the ninth concession of King as a township road.

The council also passed a resolution to be forwarded to the minister of education, at Toronto, in view of the fact that the council look upon the present educational grants in this township as inadequate and that there is a move on throughout the province urging upon the Ontario government the advisability of taking for such an increase, "strongly into consideration such increases as are in the general interest of the Ontario ratepayers."

The tender of McLeod and Lloyd of Schomberg for premium and coverage (road insurance and public liability—$10,000 to $20,000, property damage—$2,000) for a premium of $343.14, was accepted and the amount of the premium ordered paid.

The reeve was empowered to take up the matter of J. Sandler, a squatter on the old toll-gate road at Holland Landing, with the wardens and commissioners of the county, and to have steps taken to have him removed, as he had become a financial burden on the township, it was stated.

The treasurer was authorized to pay Fasken and Co. the amount of the judgment obtained in the action of Holland Marsh and King, of $2,181.71.

The time for the collection of taxes was extended to April 20. Dan Rowlands and Aubrey Gordon were paid the sum of $1,400 and $1,300 respectively, these being the amounts due them of tax credit notes.

The treasurer was authorized to pay the amount of $2 to L. W. Stewart of Schomberg, for his services as stock valuator for 1937, the amount previously omitted.

The following accounts were ordered paid: W. W. Gardhouse, county treasurer, hospitalization, $166.37; Ontario department of health, insulin, $2.20.

and a refusal on the part of the companies to negotiate on reasonable terms. Not until after cancellation in 1933 were some of the companies made willing, and they were made willing in the hour of the company's need, and they were made willing that new contracts were made, satisfactory to the government and the people. After October 6th, the rest of the companies were made willing, and accepted the same terms reducing the cost, eliminating the objectionable clauses, and prolonging the years for acceptance. Why, Mr. Speaker, we have accomplished the very thing we set out from the beginning to attain. The government is to be commended for the good bargain it has made. I accept the word of the vice-chairman that there will be no increase in the cost of power, and intend to support the bill. I permit the export of power. I see no reason why we should not export power to the U.S.A., just as we do pulp or any other commodity, and the people of Ontario stand to gain one and a half million dollars.

"When we took over the reins of office in 1934, it was discovered that it required 40 percent of our entire revenue to pay interest on our borrowings; 40 percent of all provincial taxes paid by the people went back into the pockets of the people who had corrupted the wealth of the nation, and had more money than they knew what to do with. Again the premier took his stand for the people, and backed by the government, fought the money lenders of this country, forcing them to accept a lower rate of interest. As long as these men could get five and six percent on government bonds, the farmer was asked six, seven and sometimes as high as eight percent, and he had to give good security if he could borrow at all. Today as a result of the government's policy, farmers are borrowing as low as four percent. This certainly has improved the farmer's position. The building industry was at a standstill.

"Today building contractors are busy because they can borrow at a rate that enables them to build, and sell at a reasonable profit. Thousands of men are working who were, and still would be idle, had we followed the policy of the old government of five and six percent on money. The government will continue its policy of cheap money, refunding the various issues as they come due, and I hope the savings will be used in a more extensive road program and public works of various kinds.

"Mr. Speaker, I might mention the government policy as it has affected our forests and mines, the income tax and succession duties. Sufficient to say that taken together it has meant surplus where we had deficits, less unemployment, a balanced budget, and most important of all, a re-birth of confidence by the people in the government. Who wouldn't be proud to be a member of a government that has accomplished so much, and yet we are not out of the bush. The Industrial Standards and the Minimum Wage acts have done much to appease labor in many districts. They have also helped to bring to time those heads of industry who gave no thought to the human element, who took advantage of a surplus of labor, and hired for as little as they could pay.

"The conciliation officer is also doing some good work. Where discussion exists in factories, he brings employer and employee together, and in a conciliatory way seeks to have them iron out their differences—a most commendable work, and meeting with wonderful success. That is the only way to settle disputes. The dispute that is settled with the iron heel can only prolong the day of strike and riot. Under the same administration of the minister of labor, this good work will go on in a way that will be satisfactory to both employer and employee—but those industrial heads who are determined to accumulate more wealth without a willingness to share profits with labor, can expect labor and the people of Ontario to follow them, even though it be necessary to follow them to Nassau.

"Another matter of importance to labor is that they should have some security against the day of sickness or some other cause that will force them out of the labor market. I believe that unemployment insurance is the security they are looking for, and I hope all the provinces will permit the necessary amendment to the B. N. A. Act, which will enable the federal government to pass a dominion-wide unemployment insurance act.

"The unemployment problem is still unsolved—not as bad as it was a few years ago, and yet we find a large number of men and women out of a job. We have always had a number of unemployed. Those who are unable to work, those whose work was seasonal, and now we have some who won't work. My experience is that there are a very small minority. For them I have no sympathy, but I feel very strongly for those young men and women who are anxious for work and find life no longer a pleasure because there is nothing to do. Is it possible that a country like Canada, with our vast area with all the wealth of our natural resources and a population of only eleven million, must tell young Canadians there is no place here for them to serve.

"The problem of finding gainful employment for our young people is too serious a matter for the political arena, and demands the united effort of all parties and all governing bodies in this country. Both church and state. European countries are fighting for territory, some place to put their surplus population. Here we have more productive land than we know what to do with. We have been educating our boys and girls away from the farm, until today we have a security of experienced farm help. We should start now a campaign to put our unemployed young people back on the land. A balanced budget is very important. We can't go on piling up debt, but we must choose between a balanced budget and the spending of a few million to start our young people on the road of service to the people on the road of service to the building of the nation. I think we should choose the latter. The setting aside of a definite sum for the express purpose of teaching practical agriculture and domestic science with a view to placing them on the land must be the final solution of our unemployment problem. The idea that a man who can do nothing else can farm is an insult to the intelligent farmer. Young people who are not afraid of work should be taught the necessity of good planning, a good seed bed, the importance of clean and healthy seed, the depth of the different grains should be planted, how to operate machinery, how to milk, how to feed stock, how to grow fruit and vegetables, and the necessity of keeping the garden well cultivated and free from weeds. These are some of the practical points in successful farming. The department of agriculture is to be congratulated for the two year course in practical agriculture one may have at Guelph at a minimum of expense, but the 5 or 6 dollars that is needed per week bars thousands of young people throughout the province. The selection of a few farms in good sections of Ontario, supervised by practical men, to teach the young men how to farm will pay dividends in the future that cannot be reckoned in dollars and cents today.

"And then, Mr. Speaker, for the sake of those who are unemployed, there should be a check on those who are holding jobs and don't need them. There are today altogether too many married women working, and making sufficient to maintain the home. I know I am treading on dangerous ground now. These women will charge me with taking away their liberty. They will charge that this is a discrimination against married women. I want to tell them that their liberty ends at precisely that point where it infringes on the liberty of someone else, and I charge those married women with keeping single women who have neither work or income in a state of poverty in order that they may surround themselves with all kinds of luxury and have a good time.

"How often do we read of a relief recipient being hauled into court and given a fine or jail term because a small sum they had put away in case of an emergency. I am not condoning this kind of thing, but I say their crime is a virtue in comparison to the married woman whose husband is well employed, and yet she too holds a job, while many of her own sex live in misery and poverty, waiting the stroke of begging for work. I don't know how many members of this house feel about this, but I want the people to know that I for one would compel a registration of all married women who are working, with a view to putting a stop to this kind of thing.

"The question of the beverage room is one that is being discussed a good deal today. His Majesty's opposition are making a strong bid for the temperance vote. They would have the people forget the campaign of 1934, when they didn't dare discuss their records with the electors, and said beer was the only issue. Their criticism now sounds like Satan reproving sin. Some blame the premier. Well, Mr. Speaker, the prime minister is just as much concerned for the welfare of the youth of this province as any man in Ontario. Some charge the commissioner and deputy commissioner with being the friend of the breweries. I will speak of these men as I have found them, and I will say that no two men could have given more genuine and kindly co-operation than I have found from them when in 1935 it was found that the hotel at Woodbridge was violating certain regulations. Their license was immediately cancelled, and the hotel closed. The rights of those municipalities that are wet as well as dry must be respected if we are going to hold to a democratic form of government and these men are doing their best to administer the act with this in mind.

"I think I voice the sentiments of every member of this House when I say I would like to see something done to check the drinking among the people. If that is true, then let us get above party politics on a question that is not political but moral, and unite to correct what we all believe to be an evil. If the beverage rooms could be closed to the women, that would be a long step in the right direction. If such a step would seriously interfere with our tourist trade, then I would pick out and close to ladies those rooms that are less particular about the surroundings in their establishments than they ought to be. I believe too that we should have a course of temperance teaching in our public schools to warn the children against intemperance.

"If we are going to make our position secure for the future, then it is important the people of Canada stand united. It is questionable whether the whole of Europe has ever been as near complete collapse as at the present time. If those nations are going to continue to spend on armaments, a terrible crash will come, whether they fight it or not. When that time comes we will be thrown more on our own resources. That is why I say we must stand united, united among ourselves, united with the nations who still believe in and stand for democracy. What amendments to the British North America Act will be necessary, I do not know, but we must guard with a jealous eye any attempt to take away from the provinces rights guaranteed in the B.N.A. Act.

"The Fathers of Confederation built not only for their own day, but for the future as well, and dreamed of the day when Canada would be a great nation within the British Empire. It will depend on the attitude of the people of Canada in the next few years whether that dream comes true. Ontario can have no permanent prosperity unless Quebec enjoys a like prosperity. The Maritime provinces can have no permanent prosperity with poverty in the western provinces, and so I say if some amendments must come in the B.N.A. Act to meet changed and changing conditions, it should be done by having representatives of all the provinces sitting around a common table, and there, in the spirit of conciliation, of compromise, and perhaps a little sacrifice, work out that which will be in the interest of the nation.

"And then, Mr. Speaker, if we are going to make the future of this country secure for those who are to come after us, a land where a man may think and worship as he pleases, a land of freedom, it is imperative that all appeals to racial and religious prejudice must cease. In order that the minds of the children of this province may not be susceptible to such appeals, I feel there are certain historical facts that should be taught in the public schools of this province. Almost every day I meet someone who is howling his head off, saying we should have in this country one language and one school. The B. N. A. Act sets forth very clearly and defines the rights of the people. You cannot disassociate the Act of 1867 from the Treaty of Paris of 1763. Until 1759 France and England had been contending for possession of the northern part of the continent of America. The dispute was finally settled on the plains of Abraham, and this became a British possession. At that time this was Quebec. There isn't one child in a thousand that knows that fact, and it is surprising how few older people know. At that time almost 90 per cent of the people were French Roman Catholics. England had trouble at home, and trouble was brewing with the Americans to the south, who were making a bid for their independence. England knew the danger and saw the necessity of making all these new citizens of French origin loyal British subjects. And so she said, 'If you will be true to the British crown, we will grant you every right and privilege you enjoy under the French government,' and wrote in the Treaty of Paris, 'your language, your religion, and your customs,' and went so far as to say, 'No act that shall be written hereafter shall take away from you these rights.' The same words are to be found in the Quebec Act of 1771, 'your language, your religion and your customs.' In 1775 the war broke out. The Americans sent their agents into Quebec, who said to people, 'Now is your time to break away from England. Join with us for your independence, and we will make of Quebec the 14th state in the union.' And the French replied, 'We made a bargain with England, and she gave us our liberty in exchange for our loyalty.' Then these same agents said, 'What hope is there for you, fighting against the three or four millions of Americans to the south, and all your wives and families driven out into the Canadian winter?' And these people replied, 'We will sacrifice home and everything we possess for these liberties.'

"When the war broke out, these people went out and fought under the British flag behind the old walls of Quebec, and saved this country for England. No more solemn covenant was ever written on the pages of Canadian history than that contained in the Treaty of Paris, the Quebec Act and the Constitutional Act of 1791. And yet there are those who would repudiate that contract for political gain. Again in 1812 these people played their part in retaining this country for England. And now there are those who say that separate schools was the price paid to bring Quebec into Confederation. Nothing could be farther from the truth.

"The price of separate schools was paid 160 years ago by separate school supporters, and that with their own blood. It was this historic background that caused the Fathers of Confederation to write separate schools into the B. N. A. Act, and it was this historic background that made Sir John A. MacDonald the chief friend and supporter of separate schools. To me these are important events in Canadian history, and I would suggest to the minister of education that the bare facts at least should be taught in the public schools of the province. Such appeals as were made at the last election will no longer be made, because they will have no weight with those who know the truth. I mention this today, Mr. Speaker, because there are in the riding that I represent, as there are in many ridings, a large number of Roman Catholics who are separate school supporters, and I want them to know that as long as this government is in power, we will not stop to consider a man's race or religion. He may be Jew or Gentile, Roman Catholic or Protestant—as long as he is a good Canadian citizen, he will have meted out to him all the rights and privileges that come under citizenship."

Cut Yourself A Share of Next Fall's Egg Profits With April-Hatched Bray Chicks

DOES THE TRICK

NOTE: Every last Bray Breeder is blood-tested. Out of 69,387 birds tested this year, less than one bird in every hundred reacted. With official blood-testing birds like these, you know that when you buy Bray chicks you are buying healthy chicks.

YES, SIR! Chicks ordered in April can be laying heavily in October and November, the two months of the year when egg prices are highest. But you can't buy "just chicks" and be sure of getting in on those high egg prices. The chicks you buy should be chicks that have proven themselves, in past years, to be healthy, fast-growing birds. Pullets that will not only have the development to lay early, but will come up quickly into heavy production of full-sized eggs after they do start to lay.

The Bray Chick does the Trick

L. W. W. raised all but 5 of 850 Bray Barred Rock and White Leghorn chicks. Laying in 5 months. 1941 flock pullets averaged 170 eggs per day in November, 16 1/2 months old.
A. H. bought 312 Bray Cross-Bred 1942 pullets last year. Lost only 5. Only 2 chicks in the lot. Hatched 302. Laying at 4-4 months. At 7 months the laying 175 eggs daily with 80 % of the eggs grading A-large and medium.
High Production - J. M. Bray Barred Rock pullets started to lay at 4 months, 1 week old. From October 1st to November 11th, last year, they averaged 495 eggs per day.
Fast-growing cockerels. J. N. M. bought 200 Bray Xtra-Prod Barred Rock chicks last year. Cockerels dressed 6 1/2 to 7 lbs. each when they were 5 months old.

These people found that Bray chicks not only lived but grew fast and came up quickly into full production of large eggs. Bray chicks certainly did the trick for them last year and they will do the trick for you now. Make sure you cut yourself a share of the profits to be made next fall, by ordering Bray chicks today.

A GREAT NOVEL OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE

Lowering Darkness

"Coffee for two in the lounge," Haven ordered.

Fred passed on the order to his assistant.

"Mr. Haven, sir," he said, "I'm going to give you a straight tip.
You can bet all your're worth on it—
and it's this: get out of Warsaw.
However quick you're thinking of going, go a little quicker."

"What's your good news, Fred?"
Haven asked.

"That's it. The warning you've had, and don't you forget it," was the impressive reply. "There's no more coming—not from me, at any rate. I've said enough now to lose me my job and very likely land me in prison. I don't care. Americans have got to stick together in a mess like this. You're for it, Mr.
Haven. You and whatever you've got with you that other people want. If you loiter about here any longer, it's in the other world you'll be!"

"Good fellow, Fred," Haven muttered. "Listen. There's not a soul within hearing. I know I'm in difficulties, but who's for my blood?"

"There's a long-faced, dark chap always hanging about here. Spends half his time at the telephone. I saw him talking to a friend of yours this evening. Well, he's got a pal who doesn't show up here, and, from what I heard—I was in the next telephone box this evening—he's the man who's aiming to wipe you off the earth."

"He hasn't shown up yet, but the other man's watching you. And you take it from me, Mr. Haven, without any offence, there's never been bad trouble round that a dame hasn't had something to do with it. You get me?"

Haven tucked his satchel carefully under his arm.

"I'm afraid I do, Fred," he admitted.

He crossed the hall and seated himself at the table which Anna Kostellane had indicated. The minutes passed but there was no sign of her. Instead, there advanced a melancholy cavalcade down the broad staircase—Alexis, upright and imposing as usual, walking with dignified and leisurely strides, but after him a sergeant and two soldiers, the latter with drawn bayonets. Alexis quickened his pace as he saw his master and bowed low before his chair. At a word from the sergeant, the soldiers dropped their bayonets.
They stood, nevertheless, at attention.

"American master," Alexis announced, "the end for us has come.
We have kept our word faithfully to his highness so far as the fates would have it. An order has arrived from the general commanding the garrison. We are to return to Russian soil tonight. One may be willing to fight," Alexis added, with a mighty sigh. "We cannot fight the army of Poland."

"You've done your job nobly," Haven declared, rising to his feet.
"You couldn't do this more. You and Ivan and Paul have served me magnificently and through me—the prince. It isn't an easy task I have before me—you know that, Alexis—but I shall succeed. I shall carry out my promise—you can rely upon that."

His hand was straying furtively toward his pocket. Alexis stopped him with a dignified gesture.

"Little master," he said, "we have served you for the love of his highness, for whom we would have laid down our lives."

Haven held out his hand. The Russian bowed low and kissed it.
Then he drew himself to his full height and saluted.

"The master will carry out his charge," he concluded. "He will be as faithful to his highness as we shall be to his memory in life or death."

Gooding the Laggard

They marched away, a strange procession, Alexis magnificently indifferent to his escort, and Haven felt his heart sink, was conscious indeed of a strange sense of loneliness as they left him. Anna Kostellane sank into the chair by his side with a hard little laugh.

"The tale-bearer," she scoffed.
"Has he discovered more stories to recount of my horrible life? He seems to have found some trouble on his own account."

"It is trouble splendidly earned,"
was the cold retort. "Can we discuss further this scheme of yours?"

"We must discuss it now or never in this world," she answered. "In my capacity as spy, I have been telephoning to various 'associates.'
You are in a very bad way indeed.
I can assure you of that. You have private enemies who are watching your every movement and you have official ones who are only waiting to declare themselves until they can do so with some show of authority."

"I don't see why I should suddenly become so unpopular," Haven observed. "What laws have I broken? What country have I offended? I am after all, an American official doing my duty."

She struck him across the mouth with her fan—lightly, and as though in fun, but with deliberate intent.

"I am tired of your obvious lying," she complained. "I will be as blunt with you as you have been with me. You have broken the laws of Russia, if such a country can be said to have any laws, by bringing out of it two or three million pounds' worth of jewels which had already been confiscated by the state."

"You have broken the laws of your own country by using your ambassadorial seal for protection and your ambassadorial satchel to hide the jewels in it. It is true you have crossed the frontier and arrived in Poland, but this country is still under the domination of Russia. You see, you are in a very bad way indeed."

"And you?"

"Oh, you have been clever enough to find out all about me," she mocked. "I am a spy and a prostitute and the most unpleasant person to be connected with. I left Russia with one false passport and entered Poland with another. I am going to have supper with General Grozovskii tonight. If I do not succeed in making him my slave—with all my experience it ought to be easy—I shall probably be standing up with my back to a brick wall tomorrow morning, instead of stepping into that airplane with you. The authorities here are most disagreeable about me. They do not seem to understand my profession at all."

Abandonment

For a definite interval of time, brief though it was, Wilfred Haven was illogically and ridiculously conscious of one sensation and one sensation only. He had forgotten the dangers of which she had spoken in plain words. He remembered only that single statement of her intentions. She was going to supper with the Polish general who had looked at her so strangely, yet with so much obvious admiration on the preceding evening. He struck the table with his fist, his fist which seemed swollen with upstanding veins, and he scowled into his face.

"We are going to set to work to find that airplane right away," he insisted. "You are not going to supper with that damned Pole."

Her astonishment at his outburst, if it were not genuine, was a triumph. Her features even lost a little of their impassivity. She laughed at him mockingly.

"Was on earth will stop me?"
she demanded. "I may be doing this to save my life, but I rather expect to be amused. He is elderly, perhaps, but he is an aristocrat, and his manners are excellent. It is a pity," she went on, "to have to sup so soon after our excellent dinner, but the general is impatient.
I have just spoken to him upon the telephone. He may be called back to duty at any moment."

Haven's eyes were ablaze.

"You shall not go," he declared.

Her eyebrows were slowly uplifted. She looked at him as though he had taken leave of his senses.

"The strain of these days has been too much for you," she murmured. "You have to win your way to safety as men should—with your right arm, your sword and your revolver. A woman has to use other methods. Fortunately, my experience at the tall house opposite the porter's lodge, where Prince Ostrekoff's bodyguard lodged—"

He rose suddenly to his feet. For a moment, as he towered forbid-dingly over her, she suffered a spasm of genuine physical fear.

"You can go to hell by yourself,"
he declared. "I'll find my own way out of this blasted country."

(To Be Continued)

"You can't pass this way, sir," said the country policeman. "I've orders to turn back all motorists that come along this road."

"But I'm the Chief Constable," declared the motorist.

"Sorry, sir, I didn't know. I got orders to let no traffic through because of the rotten bridge, but seeing it's you, sir, it's a pleasure.
Go right ahead, sir."

TO THE EDITOR

Editor, The Era: There have been quite a few letters written on the pasteurization of milk. And I want to say raw milk is O.K. if cows are tested, as is being carried out today.

And I want to say here and now,
in preference to the pasteurized milk,
as there is no doubt but that pasteurizing milk destroys the flavor, along with the germs, and very largely the nutrition qualities.

I wish to give my reasons for defending raw milk. About 15 years ago, near the age of 65, I had an operation, and as I did not use tobacco, or liquor, my recovery was rapid. The doctors stated my blood condition was of the best and in three weeks, the operating doctor said: "Your wound is all healed, and you can go home anytime,"
and that I had made a record recovery, and that after I had been drinking raw milk 25 or 30 years.
A man that had the same kind of operation was there seven weeks
when I went, and I left him there,
and he died a few days later.
About the last thing I do before retiring for the night is have a drink of raw milk, and have continued to do so all those years, and now when I get a small cut, or scratch, it will heal in three or four days.

If Manning Doherty, or anyone else, can do any better, or bring greater proof on pasteurized milk, let them bring it along, and all this after being told I would not live to be 35 years old. If the government would pasteurize beer and wine, along with other liquors that they are selling today to take the poison out, and inspect the cigarettes, and analyze the paper,
they would be doing infinitely more for the people of this province. A waste of money, but worse, destroying body and soul.

In regard to a statement appearing in the press that the quints have never received a drop of raw milk, it should have been pointed out that the quints have received substitutes for raw milk such as orange juice and cod liver oil that are beyond the purse of many.

BETHEL CHURCH LOSES

ACTIVE WORKER

Those who knew her were saddened by the death of Mrs.
T. W. Huntley at her home on the base line, lot 12, concession 9, on Tuesday forenoon, March 15.
She suffered a stroke followed by pneumonia.

Daughter of the late Thomas and Nancy Sennett, North Gwillimbury, Martha J. Sennett was born on Feb. 12, 1861, and on Nov. 4, 1885, was united in marriage to Thomas W. Huntley of North Gwillimbury.

From this Christian home
many people have gone out blessed and comforted, for her heart and interest lay in the welfare of others.

Many of her friends were the children who were taught by her in the cradle roll and primary department of Bethel Sunday-school.

Her attendance at Bethel church was constant and her active, faithful service in the Ladies' Aid, the Women's Missionary Society and the Women's Christian Temperance Union will be missed. Beautiful floral tributes came from these organizations as well as from relatives and friends.

Her husband, Thomas W.
Huntley, two sons, Harlan and Bernard, survive her, also one sister, Mrs. E. Norris, and three brothers, Henry Sennett, Sydney Sennett, and Silas Sennett. They have the sympathy of the community.

The funeral service at the home was conducted by Mr. Butler, the Bethel student minister.
The Rev. Terence Hart,
Interment took place in Queens-ville cemetery. Pallbearers were George Arskay, Orman Willoughby, Douglas Cooper, Bruce Fairbairn, Milton Fairbairn and Billie Winch, neighbors who have been close friends of the family.

TO THE FARMERS OF NORTH YORK

For some time past there has been no Thoroughbred Stallion available to farmers wishing to produce half-bred hunters.

The Toronto and North York hunt has an opportunity of having "ROSELYON" but do not wish to go to the expense of keeping him unless there is an indication that a sufficient number of farmers would use him. "ROSELYON" is by "SUNSTAR" and has produced some very fine hunter type colts, winners at the Royal, the Canadian National, etc.

Handsome cash prizes will be awarded to his progeny in North York for 1939.

Approved mares complimentary. As the hunt must give a decision at an early date, as to whether they will keep "ROSELYON," will far please communicate with the undersigned if interested.
